

TWO LARGE CROWDS GREET BALTIMORE MAN

Two Great Talks on Church Unity Delivered Sunday Morning and Evening

Peter Ainslie is here. That fact will mean much to the large number of people who heard him at the First Christian church Sunday.

Dr. Ainslie is the busy pastor of a Baltimore church and a man who is largely responsible for the growing interest in the unity of God's people. Richmond is indeed fortunate to have Dr. Ainslie spend a week in her midst, talking over the affairs of the kingdom. He is a man who walks with God and because of his presence here Richmond will be led in better paths and her people will be lifted to a higher plane. At the morning service the church building was filled and in the evening the seating capacity of nine hundred was taxed to the utmost.

Mrs. Decker and her choir furnished excellent music and added greatly to the worship of the meetings. Miss Cynthia Davidson's solo gave splendid preparation for the message of the evening.

When Dr. Ainslie began his morning sermon the dignity of his bearing, the pleasantness of his voice, the strength and kindness of his face, made his audience feel that a man of deep spirituality, of power and breadth of vision had come among them. The triumph in his voice when he said "It is great to be a Christian" was a challenge and an inspiration.

Dr. Ainslie's wide experience in travel, his work in church conferences enable him to present world problems in a marvellously clear way. His messages are like rays of the morning sun on the "fog that surrounds us all."

In telling of the advance step made toward church unity, Dr. Ainslie says we are past the first period of finding fault with each other, and are in the second period of looking for the virtues that all possess, to some extent, and will soon be ready to pass into the third period, which is making the faults in ourselves.

The plan for the "Oneness of the church of Christ." The church seems to have forgotten what Christ came for, and this great intercessory prayer, which Dr. Ainslie says is in reality the Lord's Prayer. "The burden of that prayer was, and is, that they may be one."

"Competition is death and churches are dying from the lack of united strength. Divisions can not win the world for Christ. An unified world is the price we are paying for our divisions," says Dr. Ainslie.

Men want religion, men want to live in Christ, but selfishness and narrowness of the church are a hindrance. "It is time for the Brotherhood of all who call God, Father."

Dr. Ainslie will preach every afternoon this week at 3 o'clock and every evening at 7:30 o'clock. These meetings will be devotional and evangelistic. Everyone is most cordially invited to all of these services.

Mr. Henry Gosby and his efficient corps of ushers will see to the comfort of the audiences. Under Dr. Ainslie's teaching the community will be blessed and Richmond will be a better town for his coming.

Moyers says he is making a thorough investigation, which is especially directed toward George Hicks, captain of the guards who Mr. Moyers said admitted letting three prisoners escape. Hicks, one of the escapees, is out of his cell, contrary to instructions. The Hickses are not related. The prisoners were still at large early today.

INDIANA COUNTY IS POPULATION CENTER

By Associated Press.
Washington, Feb. 14. The census bureau announced today that the 1920 census disclosed the center of population is located in the extreme southeast corner of Indiana county, Indiana, eight and three tenths miles southeast of the town of Spencer.

During the last decade the center of population has continued to move westward, advancing 90 miles in that direction and about 5 mile north from Bloomington, Ind., where it was located by the 1910 census. The bureau attributed the westward movement to a million increase of population in California.

IMPROVEMENT OF DIXIE HIGHWAY

Is Discussed at Cincinnati By Prominent Boosters, Including Madisonians

A number of prominent men from Madison county attended a meeting of the Dixie Highway Commission in Cincinnati last week. Col. H. B. Hanger, of this city, one of Kentucky's two commissioners, was unable to attend on account of pressure of business here.

Although the condition of the entire eastern section of the highway was discussed, the main point of interest was the stretch of about 87 miles of the road between Cincinnati and Lexington, which is said to be in an exceptionally dilapidated condition.

Thos. C. Bradley, Mayor of Lexington, speaking for the citizens of that city, stated they would stand behind any feasible suggestion made by Ohio residents for the improvement of the highway. He spoke favorably concerning a bond issue to finance the work.

Mayor Bradley further stated that he was unaware of the fact that the section of the highway between Cincinnati and his home city was in such a condition until he attended the meeting Friday night. He attributed this lack of information among the commissioners and officials of the city through which the highway is routed. His suggestion of more meetings in order to keep such officials in closer touch with the commissioners was received enthusiastically.

Mayor John Galvin spoke of the importance of Cincinnati as the gateway to the South and urged the completion of the highway at the earliest date possible in order that further trade relations between Cincinnati manufacturers and their brethren in the South.

Two rumors to the effect that the commission and the business men would discuss the advisability of transferring the highway between Cincinnati and Lexington to the Independence pike and the removal of the commission headquarters from Chattanooga to Cincinnati failed to materialize.

Among those who attended were A. E. Samford, Knoxville, president of the Journal and Tribune and director of the Dixie Highway; J. R. Williams, Knoxville; Appalachian Journal, Joseph Boggs, State Highway Commissioner, Frankfort; J. M. Herndon, Berea, Ky.; Harvey Myers, Covington; Joseph Garrettson, Cincinnati Times Star; Frank Switzelski, Cincinnati Auto Club; L. B. Shouse, president Lafayette Hotel, Lexington; Warner Sayres, Covington; H. F. Childress, Erlanger; Nat. B. Sewell, London, Ky.; W. L. Moss, State Senator, Pineville, Ky.; John Lovell, president Lee Highway Association, Chattanooga; Wm. J. Hutchins, President Berea College, Berea; Clark Kellogg, Richmond, Ky.

Attorney Harvey Myers, Covington, made a short talk on the present Dixie Highway on the Lexington pike, and stated that although it was in bad shape, the road should be placed in the same shape as that which now extends from Covington to Erlanger, Ky., and which is said to be one of the finest concrete roads in country.

At the conclusion of the meeting there was considerable sentiment toward changing the present route of the Dixie Highway over the Independence pike, which is south of Covington.

It also was stated that it would cost $200,000 to put the Dixie Highway, from Erlanger to Lexington in proper condition, and also contended that there are a number of railroad tracks which automobiles would have to pass over on the Dixie Highway.

Williamstown, Ky., Feb. 14.—Earle Steers, who shot and killed Mont Baird in a road fight in which he was severely wounded with a hand saw, was carrying a weapon concealed. His bond was fixed at $5,000.

FRIENDS STAND BY VIRGIL GAINES

Prominent Farmer Says He Hit No Man With His Car While Coming to Dying Son

His many friends here are much interested in the charges made against him in Shelby county that Virgil M. Gaines, of Richmond, struck and fatally wounded a man named Choice, an inmate of the Masonic Home in that county. The circuit court of Shelby county has taken cognizance of the unfortunate affair, and Mr. Gaines has been cited to appear before it at the May term.

Another charge was preferred against Mr. Gaines, that he was operating his car while intoxicated, which, his friends here say, of course, was not the case.

Virgil M. Gaines is one of the best known young business men and farmers of Madison county. He very frankly told the Daily Register when questioned regarding the charges made against him that he had collided with another car left standing on the wrong side of the road, but denies emphatically that he struck Mr. Choice, or was in any way responsible for the injuries which resulted in the death of the old man. Mr. Gaines is himself a prominent Mason, of high degree and in this community, where he has lived so long and is so well known, his friends say his word is as good as his bond. The fact that he himself is a Master Mason adds to the confidence in his word.

Standing goes a long way toward convincing everyone of his innocence of the more serious of the two charges that have been preferred against him in Shelby county.

In regard to the other charge that of operating his car while intoxicated, those here who know Mr. Gaines say that such a charge under such a circumstance cannot hold water for a minute. At the time Mr. Gaines was motoring through Shelby county he was returning to his home on a mission which was the saddest of his life.

He had been wired early in the day that his little son and only child was at death's door—the little boy died in his father's arms a short time later. Mr. Gaines was summoned to his baby's bedside by wire. He started out in his car. It was bitter cold. A friend, apprised of the seriousness of the call, home pressed upon him small quantity of liquor in a bottle to warm him up on his long journey. Mr. Gaines naturally took it—but says he was not intoxicated, and his friends say, those at his home here who know Virgil Gaines, that he was not.

Anyway, he started on his way home to the bedside of his dying little son, and he struck a car standing on the wrong side of the road as he turned a curve.

Mr. Gaines tells the Daily Register that he hit no man on the road, and he will tell a jury in Shelby county the same story. His friends here who know him as a man of honesty and integrity in his every dealing with his fellow man, as a Mason, whose word is always as good as his bond, say they are satisfied that what he says is true.
